Bishops Urge Major Changes By U.S. to Help Nation's Poor

By Kenneth A. Briggs

New York Times Service WASHINGTON — Calling for "a new commitment to economic justice," a committee of Roman Catholic bishops has issued a first draft of a pastoral letter that proposes sweeping changes to help the

The bishops' 120-page letter on the U.S. economy, released Sun-day, asserts that while the nation can be proud of its achievements, there have been failures, "some of them massive and ugly," such as persistent hunger, bomelessness and racial discrimination.

"Most of all we are concerned bow our economic decisions affect the poor," Archbishop Rembert G. Weakland of Milwaukee, chairman of the bishops' committee, said here Sunday at a news conference at which the document was made

"We find it a disgrace that 35 million Americans live below the poverty level and millions more hover just above it." he said. "We are appalled at the sad sight of extreme poverty elsewhere on this

In the draft of the letter the bishops said, "We believe that the level of inequality in income and wealth in our society and even more the inequality on the world scale today and carry out economic reforms must be judged morally unaccept-

Many of the bishops' proposals seek a larger role for government in solving economic problems, a position that would appear to clash with the Reagan administration's

The fundamental message of the letter is an impassioned moral appeal for a change in attitudes to-

The document makes these main

• The nation should "make a major new policy commitment" to reduce the unemployment rate to 3 percent or 4 percent with programs including increased support by the government to create jobs.

• The direction of U.S. foreign peal for a change in attitudes to-ward the poor and policies aimed at ald Reagan has been shifting toward military programs, should reemphasize basic human needs.

The "Pastoral Letter on Catholic Social Teaching and the U.S. Economy" was prepared over four years the five-member committee, which was appointed by the leadership of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

The document, considered one of the most significant pastoral letters in the history of the American The social and economic prob-church hierarchy, is to be discussed lems facing the country are made by the nation's 280 bishops at their worse by the arms race, which annual meeting this week in Wash-year. The final version is expected to be voted on by the bishops at their meeting next year.

In the document, the hishops describe their purpose as evaluating U.S. economic policies in terms of the "profoundly human, and therefore moral" issues that underlie

"Bishops do not approach economic questions as experts in eco-nomics," Archbishop Weakland said at the news conference, "but, using the best evidence and data in that field, they reflect as teachers and pastors on the effects, both good and bad, that the economy has on people."

To the consternation of some Catholics who anticipated the bish-ops' statement as a strong indict-ment of many Reagan administration social policies, the bishops decided last year to issue the first draft after the presidential election to keep their views from becoming

Following the procedure used re-cently in other pastoral letters, in-cluding the document last year condemning nuclear war, the bishops make a distinction in the letter on the economy between binding moral principles that carry the church's highest authority and practical strategies about which Catholics may legitimately disagree.

Many of the principles, such as the imperative to abolish poverty. have been considered essential teachings of the church.

The bishops committee drew upon the Bihle, theology and papal pronouncements to support the principle, fundamental to the document, that special concern for the poor should govern all economic considerations

Related principles, supported by nearly a century of Catholic social teaching, include the primacy of labor over capital and the need to place economic resources first at the service of the common good rather than toward the production

Judging the United States hy those standards, the hishops said that despite great progress in some areas, "we know full well that there have been failures, some of them massive and ugly." Part of the problem, the letter

Thatcher Urges Talks On Limiting Space Arms

Washington Fast Service
LONDON — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, in a speech Monday night, praised President Ronald Reagan's re-election and urged a resumption of East-West negotiations, particularly to head off an arms race in space.

Thai General Withdraws Demands

BANGKOK (UPI) - Thailand's top military commander withdrew his demand for a cabinet reshuffle Monday, apparently ending a political confrontation with Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanonda. General Arthit Kamlang-Ek said oo confrontation existed between the military and anti-apartheid organizations to fo-cus attention on the condition of blacks to the white-ruled republic, Reports of a confrontation stemmed from misunderstandings and speculation on the part of others. General Arthit said. He said he had wanted the monetary policy readjusted to help the poor but did not seek the removal of any cabinet members. If monetary changes can be made without a reshuffle, he said, that is a good sign.

The conciliatory tone was in contrast to an emotional speech by General Arthit last week when the Prem government devalued the currency by 17.4 percent against the dollar. General Arthit demanded a rollback of the devaluation and a cabinet reshuffle.

Polish Dissidents Form Rights Group

WARSAW (Reuters) - Fourteen Poles, locluding four of the comtry's best-known dissident intellectuals, announced the formation Monday of a buman rights group in response to the murder of an opposition

They said their group, called "The Citizens' Committee Against Violence," would work in Warsaw, issuing information on any cases of police brutality and offering legal help to victims of alleged persecution.

The committee is the third buman rights group formed to Poland since the priest, Jerzy Popieluszko, was kidnapped and murdered last month. The others are to the southern cities of Krakow and Wroclaw. Martin Luther King Sr. Is Dead at 84 in Atlanta

By Peter Kerr New York Times Service NEW YORK — The Reverend Martin Luther King Sr., 84, for decades one of the South's most influential black clergymen and the father of the slain civil rights leader who bore his name, died of a heart attack Sunday in Atlanta.

For 44 years, Mr. King served as pastor of the Ebenezer Baptist hurch, one of the South's leading hlack congregations, and he remained a major force in the civic life of Atlanta after retiring.

Although he was a pioneer leader in Atlanta civil rights battles, the national influence of Daddy King, as he was called, was through his

In the years after Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated in 1968, Mr. King often made public ap-pearances in which he invoked the memory of his son with Biblical imagery and rolling cadences, as well as his concern for the poor.

"God grant that the president emember always the least," Mr. King declared at the inauguration ceremony in 1977 for President Jimmy Carter, whom he strongly supported. "There will always be more of them than the rest."

In many ways the life of Mr. King was an American success story. He rose from the poverty of black rural life in turn-of-the-century Georgia to become an early and effective civil rights activist, an influential religious leader and the father of the Nobel Peace Prize winner who helped inspire the the population will be foreign in 50 greatest period of social change in the South since the Civil War.

As a member of the Social Action Committee of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, he helped win a legal battle to equalize the salaries of black and white teachers in Atlanta. He also fought for desegrega-tion and challenged restrictions on voting rights.

But his life was marked by tragedy. In 1969, one year after Martin Lother King Jr. was struck down by an assassin's bullet, Mr. King's only other son, the Reverend A.D. King 38, of a Baprist church in Louisville, Kentucky, drowned in a swimming pool accident. Five years later, Mr. King's wife, Alberta W. King, 69, was killed by gunfire as she sat at the church organ during a Sunday morning service. The gunman said that he had gone in the church to kill Mr. King.

Mr. King refused to speak with bitterness about his family's losses, nor did he swerve from his commitment to nonviolence and his faith in the ultimate designs of a loving

Eugenia Sheppard Dies; One of First to Write Of People in Fashion

NEW YORK — Engenia Shep-pard, one of the most influential fashion writers of the postwar era, died Sunday of cancer in New York. She was believed to he in her

In more than four decades as a writer and editor on fashion and society, Miss Sheppard became known for her breezy style, a personalized approach to fashion and her ability to spot trends.

This talent transcended the fact that she had poor eyesight and never wore glasses. She often relied on the person sitting beside her at fashion shows to describe what was being shown.

Miss Sheppard joined the New York Herald Tribune in 1940, covering home furnishings, beauty and fashion, and became fashion editor in 1947. In 1949, she started a daily woman's page and in 1956 began in write a column, "Inside Fashion," that made her famous in the fashion world. It became required reading in the fashion business.

Geraldine Stutz, president of Henri Bendel and a longtime friend of Miss Sheppard, said: "'Inside Fashion' was an enormous revelation. Up until then, fashion reportage was description of clothes. Eugenia was fascinated by fashion and began to talk about the people who made the clothes and the people who wore the clothes. She personalized fashion. It was the beginning of modern lashion reportage. When the Tribune became the World Journal Tribune in 1966, she went along as women's editor. When that paper folded, she reported on Paris fashion for the International Herald Tribune, and her column also appeared in Wom-en's Wear Daily. In 1968 she was named society editor of The New York Post

In her later years she wrote a syndicated column for Publishers Hall called "Around the Town." After she entered the hospital two weeks ago, she continued writing her column with the help of her assistant, Amy Penn.

Tiny but Powerful

Hebe Dorsey of the International erald Tribune reported from Paris: When Eugenia Sheppard took her seat at a Paris fashion show, her tiny frame not quite filling her chair and her periwinkle blue eyes shining under blond curis, she looked like an innocent Dresden doll. She rarely went back. stage to kiss and congratulate the designers and she did not talk to anybody. Nor did she check notes As a matter of fact, she hardly talked before, during or after a fashion show.

When she first came to Paris, she was an unknown and as such the was able to write what she wanted without being bound by personal or professional ties. This produced as pure fashion copy as existed.

She believed in working hard and playing hard. She loved a party and did not spend hours getting ready for it. After the copy was sent, she simply put on an evening dress and went on living. One day, she rushed so much she put on two different shoes —a beige one and a pink one - noticed it at a party, ughed and went on dancing

She was often invited to dinner by the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. After the duke died, the duchess once asked her for tea. When she came back, her only remark was: "It was very sad. All the duchess wanted to talk about was Paris countriers paid tribute to Miss Sheppard. "She was a great friend, sincere and faithful. She devoted her life to fashion writing with truth and humanity," said Pierre Cardin.

Hubert de Givenchy said, "With Eugenia we had difficult moments, but after a while we became wonderful friends." Guy Laroche noted, "She was part of our past. She was instrumental in promoting Paris couture in America.

Stir Over Arms for Managua Reflects U.S. Administration Policy Struggle

Buy an industry-standard personal computer from a world leader in communications, and you get something extra - the ITT XTRA.

Wellington Ar

A professional communicator specifically designed to grow with your every computing and communications requirement.

ALL THE WORLD'S SOFTWARE

It runs the world's best-selling software, and in local language versions, so you'll always have the programs you need.

Database, spreadsheets, graphics, word processing - you name it, the ITT XTRA takes it all in its stride.

And each of the four models in the range communicates in your language across the entire spectrum of business applications.

THE INS AND OUTS OF GOOD DESIGN

The ITT XTRA is a professional personal computer. Since it's made by ITT, that's no surprise.

The tilting, swivelling monitor can be adjusted to suit your working position exactly. It takes up the minimum of desk space - you don't have to sit it on a bulky box of electronics.

And there's a choice of monitors green, amber or colour - all with highresolution, glare and smudge-resistant screens. While the compact, ergonomically designed keyboard, with sculptured keys and home row indicators, is a pleasure to use.

THE WORLD AT YOUR KEYBOARD

You become more productive, quicker, with the ITT XTRA.

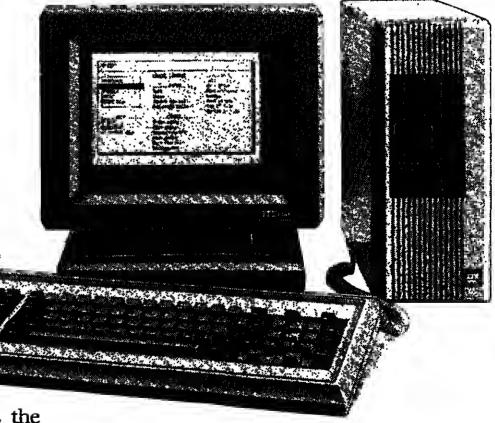

And because it's a professional communicator rather than just another personal computer, you'll never have to keep that extra output to yourself.

The built-in communications and five expansion slots mean direct access to other micros, mainframes and networks; plus worldwide electronic mail, access to Videotex systems, such as Prestel, and, in the near future, simultaneous voice and data transmissions.

So while conventional personal computers come and go, the ITT XTRA, a professional communicator, is here to stay. Which would you rather have - a conventional personal computer, or a system that offers something extra?

With the way business communications are developing, it pays to go for the extra.

ITT XTRA, the professional communicator.

A 'Vote' in South Africa

While Americans were voting last Tuesday, so, in the indirect fashion permitted them, were many South African blacks. They lack a franchise and any political mechanism for expressing their interests or communicating their views; the new South African constitution locks them out more definitely than ever. But they remain in a position to make a powerful political statement by withholding the one thing that the ruling white minority most val-ues them for: their labor. Hundreds of thousands of blacks went on strike, bringing South Africa's industrial heartland to a near standstill, according to news reports. It was de-still, according to news reports. It was described as the biggest political strike by blacks in the country's history.

It is hard to imagine the desperation and courage it takes for blacks to go on strike in what is for them a highly organized police state. They face a police force that is the arm of white privilege. By striking, they risk loss of their jobs in the cities where the jobs are and the likelihood of banishment to the barren job-less "homelands." In addition to the expected beatings, arrests and killings last week, one state-owned oil-from-coal plant known as Sasol simply fired 6,000 workers, 90 percent of its black work force. South Africa's white rulers have some to great lengths to ensure that what protests do take place against the apartheid system do not spill over ioto the work place. In the latest strike, the authorities refused to listen to or credit the strikers' assorted political and economic grievances. The protest was attributed to "instigators, arsonists and radicals," as the home affairs minister put it.

Nonetheless the strike went on. Its results are to be measured less in terms of concessions won - these are bound to be minimal - than in terms of increased solidarity among those who took part. The official South African strategy is to fragment the black majority, by setting up separate hometands and by restrict-ing organizational and even social links. But the few black organizations that have been permitted, including the United Democratic Front and black trade unions, made this strike happen. The inevitable reprisals further isolate the government from foreigners it would like to cultivate and, more important, from the blacks, whom it desperately needs to reconcile.

Baby Fae: A Key Question

The baboon heart transplanted toto Baby Fae opens a new and so far uncertain avenue of medicine. It provokes the usual train of questions, clouded in this case by unusual maladroitness at the Loma Linda University Medical Center in presenting full information. Leonard Bailey, the surgeon, says he prepared for such an experiment by doing crossspecies transplants to animals for seven years. Though oone lived more than six months, he persuaded the hospital's ethics committee that he had established a credible basis for taking the operation to humans.

The ethics committee should probably have asked Dr. Bailey to ensure that no human heart was available for his patient, it seems not to have done so, but that is a minor lapse. It was because infant hearts are so rarely available that Dr. Bailey looked to baboon hearts to remedy the defect be is treating.

Having found a patient with hypoplastic heart, a fatal toborn defect in which the heart has only three instead of four chambers, Dr. Bailey then obtained the parents' informed consent. Because the hospital refuses to release the consent form, it is unclear how fully the parents were informed of an alternative treatment in which the hypoplastic heart is reconstructed surgically. But since that treatment, too, is experimental, the point again is minor. If ethics committee approval and informed consent were properly obtained. Dr. Bailey had every right to proceed with his experiment. It would have been reassuring if articles about the underlying animal experiments had been published in scientific journals, not rejected as Dr. Bailey complains. But many important novel ideas have been rejected by reputable journals. If the experiment had been funded by the National Institutes of Health, and therefore approved by a group of fellow experts, that would have been another seal of approval. But Dr. Bailey can hardly be faulted for raising private funds for his research. Is there a chance that the baboon heart transplant will lead to a useful technique? Unlike the mechanical heart inserted into Baroey Clark, the baboon heart could allow Baby Fae to lead a normal life. She may have to endure repeated episodes of rejection, but the chance of success makes the risk worth taking. Even if this experiment fails, it could prompt a wider look at the use of animal hearts to treat other heart defects, particularly if the drugs used to prevent rejection prove successful. The deeper issue is whether it is wise to develop surgical procedures of such extraordinary expense.

Baby Fae's heart transplant may cost $1 million. Loma Linda University Medical Center is paying this time, but it will be hard to deny the operation, if successful, to parents of other Baby Faes, about one in every 12,000 births. That will be a beavy drain on resources that almost certainly would save more infants' lives if spent on preventive measures. Like Barney Clark, Baby Fae is the subject of totense public interest because of the extreme novelty of all forms of heart transplant. But these heroics, because of their expense, are bound to be a mixed blessing. New ways of curing heart disease are worth a cheer. New ways of preventing it are worth three.

The Troubles in Chile

A state of siege to Chile? Again? There is a coalitions, to compromise and to fence off the feeling that a familiar and tragic script is being Communist and fascist extremes. It is almost endured it the last time. General Augusto Pinochet, who conducted the coup of September 1973, has reacted to months of widespread popular unrest and some terrorist violence not. as be should have done, by quickening the absurdly slow political liberalization on which he had embarked, but by closing it off. His long-threatened "hard hand" has produced a series of arrests, the muzzling of the press, and the intimidation of the political parties. The elections the general has been promising for some time appear even more remote.

What is wrong to Chile? Why is it one of the few Latin American countries, of the many that lapsed into military rule in the last generation, to show itself incapable of sustaining a democratic revival? Two broad explanations are available. One goes to the personal style of General Pinochet and emphasizes his combination of a hunger for power and an evident talcot for adroit maneuver, which kept him the master of Chilean politics throughout the time he allowed liberalization to unfold.

The other explanation goes to the political culture of Chile. There is a painful lack of capacity among the parties to make serious were waiting to resume the political conflict that was raging, out of control, when the Pinochet coup broke it off 11 years ago.

The result now is a renewed state of siege that has provoked many loud, bitter and iceffective complaints, and new claims by General Pinochet that he has saved the country from violence and anarchy.

This time, though, one element of interest to Americans is different. A myth of American responsibility for the collapse of Chilean democracy spread in the 1970s. We say myth because the ever-expanding record makes it clear that Chileans were the architects of their own disaster, and the U.S. role was, though often unwise and unhelpful, finally peripheral.

But the Reagan administration has moved American policy clearly away from the personalism and the distrust of democracy represented by General Pinochet, although there was some backsliding recently when the State Department could not bring itself to condemn the reimposition of a state of siege. In any event, the policy of supporting a return to democracy

Other Opinion

ts Nicaragua destined to become a fullfledged Communist state pledged to subversion in the interests of Soviet expansion, and a threat to the North Atlantic alliance's flank? So long as there is any hope that Nicaragua might accept some modus vivendi, it is unlikely that American opinion would countenance major escalation of pressures against Nicaragua tantamount to war. Yet informed opinioo has been moving toward the view that Nicaragua may have passed the point of no return. It is serving as the rear echeloo and supply center for Salvadoran Communist rebels. 1909: Coal Strike Grows in Australia SYDNEY - The coal strike is assuming more serious proportions. The proprietors of the western collieries will not confer with the men, declaring that no grievances exist. Agents are hastening the despatch of ships in view of the waterside workers' declaration that they may join the strike [00 Nov. 16] and consequently close the port. The post-office is endeavoring to purchase coal at $15 a ton. The shops at Newcastle have stopped giving credit to the strikers. The northern proprietors will not consent to a conference until the strikers resume work.

1934: Marconi on Television's Limits LONDON - Television will never assume the same importance in the world of entertainment that radio broadcasting possesses today, in the opinion of Marchese Marconi, now to England. It will not be tong, however, Marconi said, before audiences in theaters will see performances from the other side of the Atlantic flashed before their eyes. It is likely. Marconi thinks, that these showings will be merely an adjunct to radio broadcasting. "Television," he says, "possesses one technical disadvantage in that it takes up a broader band of waves in the ether than radio and is more likely to experience outside interference." At present, Marconi is experimenting on wire control of ships. His tryours are being held in Venice.

The Invisible 40 Million: America's Poor

WASHINGTON — The presidential elec-tion results revealed an important fact about the United States that ought to be noted before we rush into the Reagan second term and its politics of contentment.

The United States is deeply divided along class lines. According to an ABC News exit poll, Americans earning more than $30,000 a year favored President Reagan over Walter Mondale by more than 2-to-1. But those earning less than $10,000 a year favored Mr. Mondale by landslide proportions. The Democrats were not the only losers on Tuesday, society's losers lost, too.

Who are those people living in families with carnings of less than $10,000 a year — that is, $192 a week, before taxes? Surely they constitute only a small part of the population?

No. More than 40 million Americans live in families with incomes of less than $10,000 a year. They are part of an America you did not see in those feel-good Reagan ads, an America of pov-erty and near-poverty that is amazingly large. In today's United States, one out of every four children lives in poverty. That is not a typographical error; one in four. Nearly half the workingage adult black men in the country — 46 percent age adult black men in the country — 46 percent — do not have jobs, when the homeless and totally discouraged are added to the conventional "unemployed." The poorest 40 percent of the population (that is, the poorest 100 million Americans) has been earning a steadily declining slice of the national economic pie in recent years, while the wealthy classes have been getting much fatter slices. That bottom 40 percent has actually fatter slices. That bottom 40 percent has actually suffered declining real income over the last five years. The country really has been changing: the poor have been getting poorer, the rich richer.

The fact that things have been getting worse so

By Robert G. Kaiser

This is the first of two articles.

totally contradicts the mood of the country that we tend to shrug it off. The Republicans ignored America's losers this fall; the Democrats, whose past efforts to "solve" the poverty problem came a cropper, made no new proposals. But the situation is getting worse. In 1980 and 1981, 43 percent of black high school graduates in America went on to some kind of college. In 1982 the number fell to 36.4 percent.

To recent years, the number of Americans to number fell to 36.4 percent.

Io recent years, the number of Americans to serious financial straits has grown appreciably. It even grew in 1983, when the economy began to boom after the recent recession. This year it will fall as the recovery continues — but only slightly, despite predictions to the contrary.

"I am absolutely confident that the poverty rate is going to decline dramatically for 1983, David Stockman told a congressional committee a year ago. The director of the Office of Management and Budget had to eat those words. When a year ago. The director of the Utice of Management and Budget had to ear those words. When the figures for 1983 came out in August, they showed that 900,000 people had joined the officially poor, bringing the total to 35.3 million.

The "poverty rate" — the percentage of Americans below the government's poverty line—rose two-tenths of a point to 15.2 percent in 1983.

As recently as 1979 the rate was 11.7 percent. Put another way, the number of poor people grew by 8.4 million from 1979 to 1983, a number equal to the population of Sweden.

But those officially designated poor are hardly the only Americans who have a tough time making ends meet. The official standard says that a family of four is poor if its total income was less than $10,178 for the year. But according to than $10,178 for the year. But according to another government figure — one that the Bureau of Labor Statistics stopped publishing in 1981 — an urban family of four needed $15,323 that year to finance a "low" living standard.

The official powerty line was set arbitrarily some 20 years ago at three times the amount a family spends on food — but not for a normal diet. The government picked an "economy" diet of admittedly inadequate mutritional value as the basis for the standard. A healthy "low-cost" diet would have cost about 20 percent more, and would have cost about 20 percent more, and would have raised the poverty line.

If that higher standard were in effect, the number of officially poor would be about 45 million — nearly one fifth of all Americans.

Nevertheless, most Americans are concerned not about their countrymen who are having a hard time, but about those who they think are taking advantage of the system. A recent CBS-New York Times poll found that, when asked who they worry about most, families getting too little welfare or families getting too much wel-fare, a 2-to-1 majority said it worries most about those getting "too much."

Among black respondents, revealingly, the numbers are the reverse: By 2-1, blacks worry most about those getting too little help.

The CBS-New York Times exit poll conducted last Tuesday asked voters if they thought govern-ment spending for the poor should be increased. decreased or kept at current levels. Forty percent of those surveyed said the government should spend more, but 39 percent said the current level was enough, and 15 percent said it was too high.

Now, Time To Fill the Empty Stage

By James Reston

WASHINGTON — There is now W a pause for rejoicing and re-flection to the Reagan administration. The president has taken a well-deserved rest at his California ranch. Democrats are nursing the wounds of their third defeat to four presidential elections, and corpenters are building the stage on the east side of the majestic Capitol Building for the inauguration ceremony.

For the moment, it is an empty stage, a platform of raw yellow lumber still under construction. But on Jan. 21 it will be draped in the colors of the flag, alive with the sound of music and the murmurs of the crowd, awaiting the oath of office and the voice of the president.

What will he say about the meantog of his spectacular victory? Will he see it as a mandate to continue his policies of the past, or as an opportunity to deltoe his vision of the future? Beginning with his inauguration speech and going on to his State of the Union address and the first budget of his second term, Mr. Reagan prosperity there is no doubt. But on the means to these ends, he faces to the new Congress, in the nation and to the world a clash of contradictory opinions dogmatically held and often acted upon with fanatle violence.

"four more years" to deal effectively with his domestie and foreign problems. It is in the first year, when the influence of his victory will be at its height, that he will have the best chance of dealing with his two most pressing problems. They are the control of the nuclear arms race and the control of the national budget, with its alarming fiscal and trade deficits. Two facts illustrate the importance of time in dealing with these problems.

First, the production of ouclear weapons in the United States and in the Soviet Union does not wait for the election returns. Every day these povernments produce at least four or five new nuclear weapons.

Second, the interest on the mounting U.S. national debt has increased to $256 million a day.

This explains why Washington, to this time of rejoicing, is enger to get along from the celebrations of the

There in Reagan country, the president may have been puzzled by the chilly silence that greeted this line.

He certainly would not have liked the Charlotte Observer's editorial of Oct. 9, headed: "You Were Wrong, Mr. President." Charlotte was the city at issue in Mecklenburg vs. Swan, the case in which the Supreme Court first ordered busing as a remedy for a segregated school system. Mr. Reagan, typically ill-informed, did not know that more than a decade later Charlotte has a fully integrated school system, which the Observer gan may not be able to replace as many as four elderly justices with arch-conservatives, reshaping the court for decades to come. Such a court, the Observer and other critics fear, would overturn previous decisions on such "social issues" as busing; the Republican platform pledged judicial appointees opposed to abortion.

But Supreme Court nominees must be confirmed by the Senate; and the new Senate lineup - 53 Republicans, 47 Democrats - features three conservative-to-liberal shifts: Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee for Howard

Baker; Paul Simon of Illinois for Charles Percy (a one-time liberal who got the Reagan religion); Tom Harkin this is not his favorite pastime.

Before long, however, he must fill the empty stage with the policies and people he means to depend upon in the next four years. After all, four or five new nuclear missiles a day and debt interest of $256 million a day are not the sort of things you can dispose of with a wave and a smile.

What to Do When the Honeymoon Ends

Washington — As the dust settles and Democrats settle down to the chore of arguing that President Reagan was denied a mandate because he was denied the District of Columbia and his opponent's home state, the political system is slipping into what is called the "honeymooo" period, which lasts until the winner of an election claims a mandate to do something.

Alexander Woollcott said that reading the tast chapters of "The Brothers Karamazov" always "ebokes me up and fills me with a love of mankind which sometimes lasts till noon of the following day." The political "noon of the follow-moon and the beginning of a normal, which is to say occasionally stormy, marriage — is coming soon. So Mr. Reagan should go ahead and raise a lot of dust by raising questions only a second-term president can raise. It has been so long since we have had one of those exotic creatures that we need to reinvent the rules for them. But for the fun of it, be could begin by proposing the following:

Repeal of the 22d Amendment. In 1988 Mr. Reagan may (1 am not prejudging this) be a tad too old to seek a

Not only is the Republican majority reduced; conser-

Senate to 1986; the party in power usually loses seats in mid-term elections. Twenty-two Republican senators will be running, but only 12 Democrats.

After 1986, therefore, Mr. Reagan's Supreme Court cominees may have to be acceptable to a Democratic majority; and confirmation of any choice he might send to the Senate after, say, June 1986 probably could be stalled by Democrats until after that year's election.

It is unlikely that four vacancies would naturally occur third term. So be is just the fellow to ing day" - the end of the boney- propose uncluttering the Constitution of the two-term limit on presidents. No one should be a lame duck the day she (I am looking after President Kirkpatrick's interests) is inaugurated. Being a lame duck makes the chief executive less fearsome, and fear is what makes Washington work - well, O.K., 97 percent fear and 3 percent devotion.

Repeal of the War Powers Act. It is unwieldy, unclear and clearly uncon-stitutional as a derogation of the responsibilities of the commander in chief vested in the presidency and exercised by most occupants of that office. No president has yet quite complied with the Act. Repeal would be the straightforward approach.

Abolition of the Federal Election Commission and all limits on campaign spending and giving. The com-mission is a bureaucracy that exists to enforce limits on spending, which are limits on the quantity of political speech. Fortunately, it fails to do that. It must fail, given American inventiveness regarding loopholes. Still, the commission's mere existence is unaesthetic, and an affront.

The "quarantining" of Nicaragua. This was the good idea from the Mondale campaign. I do not know precisely what the Democratic candidate meant by it, but he now has the spare time to explain it. Mr. Reagan could embrace the idea as an example of bipartisanship. What fun. Repeal of the law pertaining to special prosecutors. Too often a special prosecutor is used as a means of harassing officials of the executive branch (for example, Hamilton Jor-dan and Edwin Meese). Besides, the law probably is unconstitutional. It establishes a law-enforcement function outside the president's control. although the Constitution vests to the president the duty to see that the laws are faithfully executed.

Repeal of the American League's designated-hitter rule. I have hitherto addressed the president sharply about this and my patience is not inexhaustible. Conservatism means keeping your cotton-pickin' hands off fundamentals. Reformers messed with baseball's fundamentals. Today's conservatives are promiscuous amenders of the Constitution. Surely they can see the need to restore baseball to its pristine condition.

These proposals would bring the honeymoon to a screeching halt, but no marriage can be all bliss. As Dan Jenkins says in his hilarious new novel, "Life Its Own Self," marriage is sounds better but because there is one year in Heaven and 20 years in still a Gandhi at the helm. the light-heavyweight division.

The Priest, The Church The General

By Leopold Unger

B RUSSELS — Father Jerzy Popieluszko was not the first Polish priest to die in the line of duty. Thousands of priests died in deportation during czarist times and under Bolshevik rule as well as to Nazi concentration camps. But Father Popieluszko is the first Polish priest to have been killed by Poles, not foreigners.

The murder was worse than a crime, it was a blunder. And it added a national dimension and a political symbolism to what would have been a simple buman drama

One man's death — even that of the most popular of men—is not enough, however, to bring about a sudden fundamental change in the sudden fundamental change in the nature of a political system.

The investigation of the priest's murder, therefore, is being carried out by the same Interior Ministry that has protected civil servants of the ministry believed to have killed a student and a farmer.

The investigation is being supervised by the same prosecutor who recently opened an inquiry into the activities of Father Popieluszko under the charge of subversion.

The church and the regime have chosen caution for now, and have chosen caution for now, and have reached some sort of tacit alliance, so as not to fall toto the trap laid by the killers and the men behind them.

They want to avoid a confrontation that they may not be able to control.

A few hours after Father Popieluszko's funeral, General Wojciech Jaruzelski conferred to Warsaw with his special envoy to the Vatican, Jerzy Kuberski. According to reliable sources, Mr. Kuberski returned to the Vatican with a letter from the Polish leader to Pope John Paul II. Leaders of the Polish church will hold an extraordinary meeting later this month to discuss the murder of Father Popietuszko. Afterward, on Nov. 26, Cardinal Jozef Glemp will travel to Rome to confer with the pope. The priest's murder will unquestionably be on their agenda.

The circumstances surrounding Father Popieluszko's death will clearly affect the future relationship between Poland and its church.

Before the assassination relations between the church and the state were practically nonexistent. A meeting scheduled between General Janzelski and Cardinal Glemp for Nov. 29 was canceled by the government without explanation. Negotiations on the principal issues separating the two major powers of the nation were at a standstill. Nothing was being done about the private agricultural assistance fund, nor about the 22 political prisoners excluded from the July amnesty of 652 others. The regime's attacks against the church had increased. A former minister responsible for relations between government and church lashed out at the pope to the government tool of "American hegemony" and of Bonn's "pan-Germanism." Behind all this lies the fundamental debate on the role of the church in a Communist state. What the regime appears to be proposing is the Byzantioe-Russian model of a church minding its own business while re-maining obedient to its political overseers. That model, however, is foreign to the Polish Catholic tradition and to the way Poles see the church today. Father Popieluszko was the living symbol of this contradiction. His uncompromising attitude in supporting Solidarity's principles embarrassed even Cardinal Glemp. And if the primate rejected the regime's demand that he discipline the priest, the cardinal, nevertheless, suggested that Father Popieluszko request a scholarship to study in Rome.

The question now is who will be the next victim of Poland's special execution squads. More victims are inevitable; provocation is an iotegral part of recent Polish history.

Pogroms unleashed by the political police in 1946 left at least 34 victims in the city of Kielce among the Jewish survivors of Nazi death camps. In 1968, students were beaten by "groups of angry patriotic workers" to forestall a "Zionist plot" in Po-land. What lay behind this brutality was an attempt to create riots that would have led to the downfall of the ruling team of Wladyslaw Gomulka to make room for the fascist organizations supporting the infamous General Mieczyslaw Moczar.

General Jaruzelski has accepted the Politburo's "recommendation that be personally supervise the activities of the Interior Ministry and investigate the security services.

One of his predecessors promised the same thing after Stalin died in 1953. Another made the same sort of vow after the 1956 workers' rebellion of Poznan. Yet another made similar statements after the 1970 revolt.

None has kept his word. And General Jaruzelski will oot be the first. International Herald Tribune.

Encore.

Not even Hollywood could have given Ronald Reagan a more satisfactory script: two consecutive landslides, a resounding affirmation of the way he played his most challenging role.

How it all came about is the subject of an extraordinary special election issue of TIME Magazine available now.

This is the most comprehensive election issue that any newsmagazine has ever published.

It is a finely detailed overview that includes an exclusive interview with President Reagan, and an exclusive appraisal of the election's impact by America's foremost president-watcher, Pulitzer Prize-winning author Theodore H. White.

Also in this issue—

- A fascinating dissection of the election and how particular campaign strategies worked in different regions with different demographic groups.
- An examination of how Labor voted, and why.
- An appraisal of a prospective candidate for '88, George Bush.
- A look at what Geraldine Ferraro achieved.
- What lessons the Democrats learned from their defeat, and how they can profit from them.
- A gallery of arresting campaign photographs.
 Definitive election coverage, as only TIME could do it. The kind of journalism that 31 million readers around the world look for every week.

A striking example is Eliot Elisofon's time-lapse photograph of the artist Marcel Duchamp walking down a flight of steps, carefully made to echo the exact shapes of the artist's masterpiece "Nude Descending a Staircase." Eurodollar-Futures Market

By H.J. MAIDENBERG

EW YORK - One of the startling developments in the financial-futures markets this year has been the required. One answer is that since May, when the Continental Illinois Bank's troubles came to light, more banks have found it easier to tap the Eurodollar market for funds than domestic investors," said one Chicago financial-futures trader.

"The European market has been easy to tap because it is awash with dollars generated by our worsening trade deficit," he added. "Althoughtinterest rates on all short-term instruments have fallen about 200 basis points in the last two months. European and other foreign investors still favor the safety of dollar investments, especially those they can hedge in the futures markets here and in

B UT another surprising development in the financial-futures markets can be linked directly to changes in the interest-rate structure over the past year. That development was the increase in volume in the previously lackluster market in 6.5-to 10-year Treasury note futures on the Chicago

In October, Treasury-nnte volume jumped to 149,200 contracts, up from 57,700 in October 1983. For the first 10 months, the volume has climbed to 1.3 million, from 674,000 a year ago. Meanwhile, Treasury-bond futures continue to be the most actively traded of all futures, with the volume soaring last month to 2.9 million contracts, from 1.8 million in October 1983.

"The T-note futures have become active because the interest yield curve between the maturities in that sector and the long end of the bond market have been more or less equal for quite some time," one investment banker in New York explained, Treasury note and bond yields have both been fairly flat at roughly 11%

Another investment banker cited the "volatility index," which is becoming a major factor in the fixed-income securities market, as contributing to the shifts in financial-futures trading activity. Each trading house has its own index of price volatility upon which it determines the cash margins required of its trading partners or investor clients. The more volatile the market or the particular maturity sector, the higher the cash margin required.

Also, the more volatile a market, the greater the activity in the corresponding futures. Because the long end of the bond market - the 20- to 30-year maturities --- is more volatile, more institutional money managers have used the bond futures for hedging.

Volatility is important to measure because a change of one percentage point in the yield of a long-term bond is equal to a price change of $70 for each $1,000 of face value. In comparison,

VW Signs Pact With E. Berlin

Firm to Supply Engines, Vans

By Warren Getler International Herald Tribune
WOLFSBURG, West Germany Volkswagenwerk AG signed a 600-million Deutsche mark ($204million) agreement with East Germany on Monday to provide autoengine assembly equipment and light commercial vans, a VW

The spokesman, Ortwin Witzel, said the contract differs little from a tentative agreement reached in February between the West Ger-man automaker and Industrie Anlagen Import, an East German state company. Under that agree-ment, VW was to supply the assem-bly equipment and several thousand VW vans to East Germany for five years beginning in 1988.

Signing of the agreement marks Volkswagen's first major footheld in Eastern Europe and occurs one month after VW signed with China the first joint venture agreement for passenger car production in China.

Economics Minister Martin Bangemann of West Germany said in a statement that he "welcomed" VW's signing of the accord, which would run from 1989 to 1993, inclusive, Mr. Bangemann said the agreement would likely provide new impulses" to West German capital investment in East Germa-ny, which has declined in recent years, and would help create fur-ther opportunities for joint ventures between enterprises in West Germany and East Germany.

Mr. Witzel said details about financing of the agreement and the site of the East German facility would not be available until at least

The tentative agreement an-nounced by VW in February called for delivery to the East German government of plant equipment designed for the assembly of 286,000 1- to 1.3-bier engines annually, of which 100,000 would be shipped back to West Germany for final assembly and would serve as the

Zanussi Is Key to Electrolux Growth

By Barnaby J. Feder
New York Times Service
STOCKHOLM — In its 1983 annual report published last May Electrolux AB, the Swedish appliance maker, said that it hoped to build a strong position in several more countries during the next few years, probably by acquiring companies.

At that time, Electrolux was several months into negotiating a transaction that could accomplish its expansion goal with just one leap, the takeover of Zanussi SpA of Italy. The financially troubled Italian company is estimated to have 12 to 13 percent of the European market for white goods such as refrigerators and clothes washers.

Zanussi, Italy's second-largest private-sector company, after the auto maker Fiat SpA, effec-tively bankrupted itself by ex-consumer electronics and pre-fabricated housing. But its strength in southern Europe in general, and in goods such as washers in particular, made it a potentially ideal partner for Electrolux. Where Electrolux is strong Zanussi is weak, and vice versa, the Swedish company said in a receot oewsletter. The plan would require Electrolux to invest about $106 million, half through buying shares that would give it 49 percent of Zan-ussi and half in debentures that could eventually be converted to stock to give it a 75-percent Acquiriog Zanussi would make Electrolux about 25 percent larger. The purchase would also increase bome appliances' share of Electrolux's business from the 52.3 percent reported last year. In September, Electro-lux reported before-tax earnings of $149 million on sales of $1.94 billion in the first half of 1984.

"The Zanussi deal would not have much impact on our U.S. operations, which are 24 percent of oet sales." said Anders Scharp, Electrolux's president. "We are still very interested in expanding those operations. The one possible Zanussi connection would be to market some Zanussi goods through Tappan, nur major appliance group in the

Saudis Cut Production Of Crude Oil

NICOSIA - Saudi Arabia has cut ail production below four million barrels per day in a bid to raise prices to official OPEC levels and is prepared in cot output even further, the Middle East Economic Survey reported Monday.

Quoting an authoritative Saudi oil source, the newsletter said that Saudi Arabia's output was below its quota of 4.35 million barrels per day under the new ceiling of 16 million barrels per day set by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The Saudi spurce also was quoted as saying "the production cutback is a flexible instrument, and it is to be operated on a weekly basis." The petroleum industry newsletter, based in Nicosia, has close ties to Saudi Arabia, OPEC's

The fact that we have reduced our production to below four million barrels per day is a reflection of our determination to ensure the success of the OPEC effort to restabilize the market and push up prices to the OPEC official levels," a Saudi Arabian source told the oil publication, according to United Press International. "If necessary," the source added, "we would be prepared to cut production even further to achieve this aim."]

Meanwhile, Petroleum Intelligence Weekly estimated in a report released Monday that OPEC oil production grew to some 16.6 milion to 17.0 million barrels per day in October before the group agreed to cut its quota to 16 million barrels per day, Reuters reported from New York.

PIW said non-OPEC, non-Com-munist oil production rose to 21.7 million barrels per day in September from 21.5 million barrels per day in August on increases in U.S. North Sea and Mexican output. ■ OPEC Meeting Denied

Hong Kong Tries to Keep Taxes Low

HONG KONG - Government and business officials are searching for solutions to the inevitable changes in Hong Kong's low tax-ation system, which may reduce the revenues, enabling Hong Kong to colony's attractiveness to nverseas investment.

The government now is debating different revenue-boosting measures to relieve a budget deficit now in its third consecutive year. Income fell short of expenditure by 3.5 billion Hong Kong dollars ($448 million) in the financial year 1982-1983, and by 2.99 billion dnllars in 1983-1984.

Trading on Wall Street Is Slow NEW YORK — Share prices on the New York Stock Exchange were drifting at a lower level late Monday on a post-election slump that carried over into a fourth day. carried over into a fourth day.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which lost 9.72 Friday, was down 3.86 to 1,215.11 an hour before closing. The Dow had been down nearly seven points in early afternoon before recovering some of the loss.

Advances led declines, 935-522, among the 1,935 issues traded. The five-hour volume fell about 46.03 million shares from 69.62 million in the same period Friday. the same period Friday. Analysts said the low volume was due to the semi-holiday, with many banks and the Federal Reserve closed for Veterans Day. While prices in tables on these pages are from the 4 P.M. close in New York, for reasons of time this news account is based on information gathered earlier in the day. Michael Metz of Oppenheimer Co. pointed out that many state offices were closed, curtailing activity in some pension funds.

Mr. Metz said aside from the holiday-like atmosphere, many large institutional investors were on the sidelines due to a lack of conviction about the future of the economy including the trends for interest rates and inflation.
"Until there's some better external visibility, there is no urgency to become more exposed to the market," Mr. Metz said. The market's erratic behavior last week - up

A Standard & Poor's Corp. publication said the stock market is likely to have trouble mak-ing gains between now and the end of the year. "Even a cut in the discount rate by the Federal Reserve will not have any great impact on the market because interest rates probably have run their course," said Arnie Kaufman, editor of The Outlook. The market's year-end performance is usually made some investors nervous about what hapboosted by increased investment funds from extra dividends, bonuses and the like, as well as a general sense of optimism about the new year, according to the publication. "While the president's policies may contin to be effective in keeping down inflation and interest rates over the near term, recession wor-ries are spreading," Mr. Kanfman said. Even without a recession, "the outlook for corporate profits next year are, to say the least, uninspiring," he said. Market watchers recalled that when Mr. Reagan was first elected four years ago, stocks had a rise and fall similar to what happened last week. Four years ago, the week after the election saw a gain of more than 50 points in the Dow indus-

A NEW NTERNATIONAL NAME. THE SAME EXPERTISE WORLDWIDE

On January 1st, 1985 a new name goes up over the door of many bank buildings throughout Africa, Asia and the Middle East. On that day, The Standard Bank and The Chartered Bank formally adopt the name of their parent group-Standard Chartered.

The new name over the door simply underlines the fact that Standard Chartered gives you immediate access to one of the largest integrated branch networks in the world-over 2,000 branches, in more than 60 countries.

And it's intended to serve as a reminder that dealing with Standard Chartered offers international customers some very tangible benefits-including faster and more efficient cash transmission, more competitive currency dealing on a 24-hour-a-day basis, and a knowledge of world markets, contacts and opportunities based on nearly 130 years of specialisation in international trade.

We can assure you that one thing won't change. And if you already deal with Standard Chartered you'll know just what that assurance can mean, in helping you to do overseas business with fewer problems and higher profits. If, on the other hand, you haven't yet discovered the Standard Chartered difference, there'll never be a better time to do so than now. Because we know that having a new name is not enough, unless we earn one as well.

Diplomats Say China, With Record Harvest, Ending U.S. Grain Pact

Resers

BEIJING — China's agreement with the United States to purchase guaranteed quantities of grain has been effectively ended, diplomats said Monday.

They cited China's expectation of a record 400-million metric ton harvest this yearand retaliatory moves by Beijing against U.S. action reducing U.S. imports of Chinese textiles.

Under an agreement between the United States and China reached in 1981, China was due to import a total of 8.2 million tons over 1983 and 1984. But according to U.S. statistics. China has so far coly bought 4.3 million tons in this period, with less than two months to go before the end of the year.

Despite an assurance from a foreign trade ministry spokesman in Beijing that talks with Washington over grain imports are continuing other Chinese officials indicated that the import level required by Chioa under the pact would not be met.

level required by Chioa under the pact would not be met.

China's increasing ability to feed its one billion people will also affect Australia and Canada, the other major grain suppliers. The diplomats said that China might renegotiate its pacts with Australia and Canada to secure a lower import quota, while using exported U.S. grain to top up import requirements.

According to the China news agency, the country will gradually cut imports following a succession of good harvests and has shelved plans for several grain unloading berths to be constructed.

"With this situation, there is little the United States or any of us can do," said a foreign agricultural attache in Beijing.

Why sponsors of major projects retain The Morgan Bank as export-import finance advisor

Most of the world's major projects, from giant energy plants to mass transit systems, require large amounts of equipment, materials, and engineering and construction services from sources around the world.

Arranging for the best possible financing of these goods and services-which can come from competing sources—is vital to a project's success. That's where help from an experienced export-import financial advisor can make the difference.

The Morgan Bank has a long history of successfully negotiating financing for projects worldwide. Whether serving a government, government agency, or corporation, we deal knowledgeably with suppliers, their banks, and official export credit agencies so that sponsors will obtain the lowest interest rates, the longest repayment periods, and the best terms and conditions.

When a client retains Morgan's Multisource

Export Finance Group as financial advisor, here are some of the assignments we take on.

☐ We assist in the preparation of the financial section of the bid documents.

☐ We analyze all bids in all currencies and reduce them to a common currency for comparability.

☐ We use a proven computer model to calculate present values and internal rates of return relative to contract prices, interest rates, currency alternatives, grace periods, repayment periods, and fees.

☐ We help design and conduct a negotiated bid process.

☐ We advise on structuring currency swaps, interest rate swaps, long-dated forward exchange contracts, currency options, and delayed rate setting alternatives to minimize risk and reduce all-in borrowing costs.

☐ We help negotiate loan documentation to achieve simplicity and commonality when there are lenders from different countries.

☐ We help implement the client's financial plan by setting up disbursement procedures, letters of credit, and money transfer arrangements so that all funds are received and disbursed in a timely fashion.

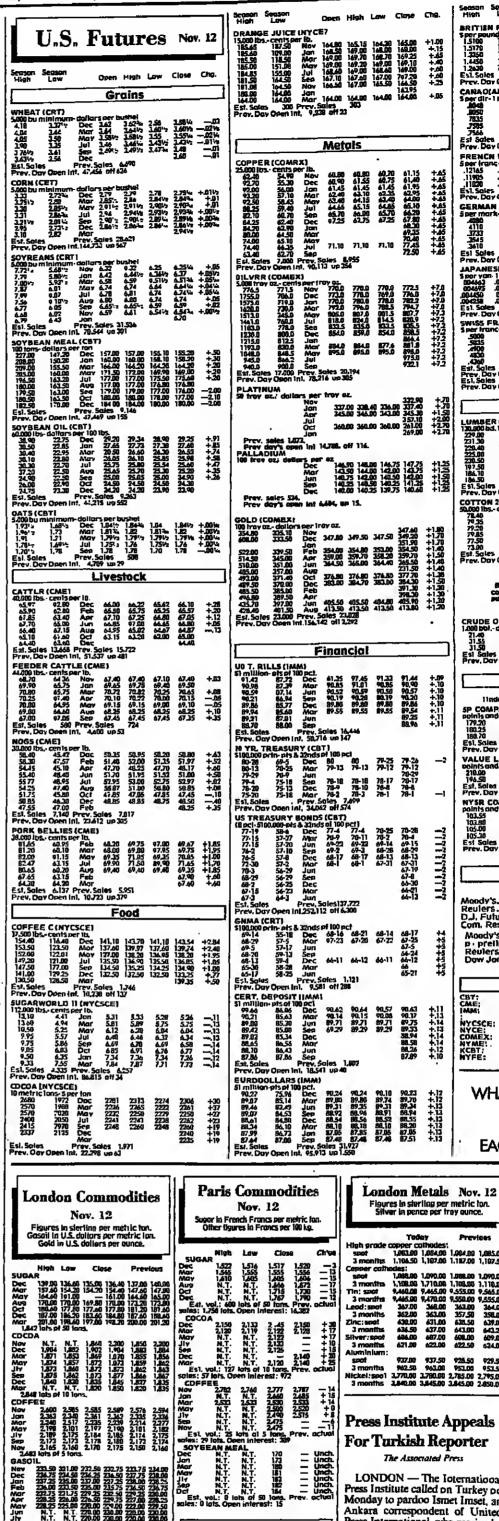

Landsvirkjun, Iceland's national power company, retained Morgan to advise on the electromechanical works of its $120 million Blanda hydroelectric power project—with over 100 separate bidders. Others that have appointed us recently include an Asian country's mass transit system, a national airline in Europe, a multinational petroleum company, a U.S. city's transportation authority.

To discuss how we can help you on a major project, talk to the Morgan banker who calls on you, or George D. Cashman, Vice President, Multisource Export Finance, Morgan Guaranty Trust Company, 23 Wall Street, New York, NY 10015.

EAGLE AGAINST THE SUN

By Ronald H. Spector. Illustrated. 561 pp. $24.95.

Reviewed by Drew Middleton

A NOTHER book about the war in the Pa-cific? Yes, and in my opinion the best one-volume history of that complex conflict. There are other good books on that war; but no other presents as balanced a view or provides such terse and searching analyses not only of the great battles but of half-forgotten aspects, such as the impact of blacks and female participants on the American services.

Spector's final judgment strikes home: "Su-perior American industrial power and organizational ability" were the primary factors in the defeat of Japan. Certainly there were gifted admirals and generals in command and thou-sands of brave and resourceful officers and soldiers. But in the end it was the ability to produce hundreds of ships, mountains of anks, and thousands of aircraft that counted. The book explores areas of the war that other historians have left relatively untouched. There are two very fine chapters on the American and Japanese states of mind as the nations moved inexorably toward Pearl Harbor. Spector's analyses of the prewar army and navy are admirable. So are his well-researched trenchant comments on the coming of WACs and blacks into the Pacific theater. There are omissions. I do not think the book ives sufficient weight to the British defeat of the Japanese oear the India-Burma border towns of Kohima and Imphal. And should there not have been more extensive treatment of the bitter battle waged by Philippine guerrillas between 1942 and the eventual recapture of the islands? Another omission, for which I am sure Spec-

The Pacific campaigns, unlike those in En-rope, were the scene of persistent and, in some cases, damaging conflicts between the naw, and the army, including the fledgling air fonc Spector is objective but penetrating on what the air force could and could not do. For example, its early record on bombing Japanes warships was wildly exaggerated.

But the author gives the air force full credit for the fearfully effective firebomb raids on Tokyo and other cities, raids that demonstrate ed the effectiveness of the B-29 bombers and the skill of their crews.

One of the most fascinating sections of "Fa gle Against the Sun" deals with the plans for the invasion of the Japanese home islands that would follow Okinawa. The Okinawa bank cost the lives of 7,000 soldiers and marines and nearly 5,000 sailors. Another 5,000 sailors were wounded, largely by kamikaze attacks. The total was the highest ever suffered by the navy.

Against that somber background the forest prepared for the invasion of Kyushu Island. The estimate was that of the 767,000 men to be employed, casualties would amount to approximately 268,000 dead and wounded.

The author treats with care and respect the continuing debate over whether Japan would have surrendered without invasion or atomic attack. His comment is, "Whether Japan would have been eventually forced to surrender by sheer exhaustion can never be proved or disproved conclusively. Yet it is hard to see how a long-continued aerial bombardment of Japan could have cost fewer lives than the two atomic bombs.

This exemplifies the clear thinking that is one of the book's great merits. No future book on the Pacific war will be written without paying due tribute to "Eagle Against the Sun."

Lakers Gelling With Shifts in Starting Team

The Associated Press INGLEWOOD, California -The Los Angeles Lakers finally seem to have their act together, and it hasn't come too soon for Coach Pat Riley.

"I think the Portland game Fri-iday night was a springboard for us," Riley said after the Lakers whipped New Jersey, 121-111, here Sunday night. "We play six of our next nine at home and it's a good time to make hav before we have to go and play back East."

In Sunday night's other National Basketball Association game, Portland defeated Golden State 109-97. The Lakers were 3-5 after a 122-106 setback at Golden State Thursday. Riley made a couple of lineup changes, starting forward Larry Spriggs and guard Michael Cooper, and it paid off as the Lakers won in Portland, 130-126. Spriggs and Cooper started again against New Jersey, but Riley pointed to a couple of reserves as key factors for his team, "Kurt Rambis and Mitch Kupchak did a great job," Riley said, "They were strong on the boards and played very well on defense," Rambis, a starter at the beginning of the season, had eight points and seven rebounds, while Kupchak had nine points and six rebounds, Stewart Brand and his wife, Patty Phelan, in front of their renovated tugboat.

The catalog has received some rave reviews thus far although the advance word-of-mouth bad been ominous.

"There were two big rumors about the book," said Brand, "One, that it was terrible, and two, that it was terribly late. The rumor was: No way these unreconstructed hippies could possibly surround and contain this impossible body of material — but we did it, and it froze the compe-

Brand, who was once a hiologist, finds the form and function computers reminiscent of biological processes. He believes the machines are a liberating force, empowering a new generation of information adepts. He also worries that computers' impact must be monitored, but that those who ordinarily do the monitoring have been co-opted." He said: "All the nice liberal critics have Kaypros. They don't greet computers with the howls of protest that greet recombinant DNA re-

The inner dialogue over materialism, he said, continues for him and for many others whose ideology took root in the '60s culture. "It's as if there's an angel and a devil on their shoulders," he explained. "One is saying 'Go get stoned,' and the other is saying Double your income.

He paused in thought, this man who gave away $20,000 in $100 bills at a party in 1971 to share the profits from "The Last Whole Earth Catalog." The slogan carried by the book's Phoenix-like next edition cautioned: "Stay hungry. Stay foolish."

"I'm not particularly hungry, he said, the blue eyes scouting something a good way from E Dock, "But we can find a way to get hungry again."

Police in Sussex, England, say they have arrested several people in connection with an alleged plot to kidnap Paul McCartney's wife. Linda, for a £10 million ($12.6 million) ransom, Sussex police reported Sunday. Bernard Doherty, a spokesman for the McCartneys, said the "apparent episode" took place "more than a year ago and has now been cleared up by the police." Police declined to comment on the case, other than to say that they learned of the alleged plot in the course of another investigation. They refused to identify the suspects and said they were continuing their investigation to see if charges should be filed.

David Allan Coe, the countrymusic singer, has scheduled a benefit concert in memory of the singer and songwriter Steve Goodman, who wrote Coe's first hit.
